

Anatomy of a Zipper

Zipper - A closure composed of two rows of interlocking teeth used to close garments, bags, and more.

- Zippers are available in different lengths, widths, and teeth sizes.
- The interlocking teeth can be made of metal, nylon, or plastic.
- Since zippers are used for many different purposes, there are a large variety of styles available including invisible, decorative, separating, and more.

